Isabella Vickers - Associate

Isabella is an associate in the firm's real estate section where she represents developers and community associations and assists them in the growth of their communities. Isabella assists clients throughout the various phases of single-family, townhome, condominium, commercial, and mixed-use projects, including drafting governing documents that serve to initially encumber the real estate.

Isabella graduated with honors from the University of Texas at Austin with Bachelor of Arts degrees in Economics and International Relations and Global Studies and with minors in Spanish and European Studies. She received her law degree from the University of Houston Law Center where she graduated cum laude. During law school, Isabella served as a 1L representative to the Hispanic Law Students Association, acted as a tutor for 1L property law classes, was elected secretary of the Clinical and Lawyering Enrichment Organization, and worked as the Managing Editor of the Houston Business and Tax Law Journal. Additionally, she had the opportunity to represent small business owners in the Houston area through her participation in the Law Center's Entrepreneurship and Community Development Clinic. Isabella has worked as a legislative intern for Texas State Senator Judith Zaffirini, as a clerk at Crady Jewett McCulley & Houren LLP, and as a tax analyst for Deloitte Tax.
